

In traditional Japanese aesthetics, wabi-sabi (侘寂) is a world view centered on the acceptance of transience and imperfection.

A year ago before our Willy Nilly Run, (September 17, 2018), Sally suggested that our next run be called the WABI SABI RUN. The name came from evaluating our past runs; and, in conclusion, realizing how much our lives have been blessed by the fun we have had with these little sports cars, the people in our Clubs, and the trips and outings that we have participated in.

People most often use the noun transience when they're talking about good things, like beautiful days, a nice life, or a fun vacation, that seem to be over in an instant. We jokingly complain about our machines and their issues, but, we keep them on the road and the philosophy of embracing imperfection as a path to greater happiness.... we're just saying!
